Goddess Bagalamukhi is the eighth Mahavidya out of Ten Mahavidyas. She is the Goddess of immense power and is worshiped to attain victory over enemies, arguments etc. A person who worships her gets relief from all sorts of problems in life. The word "Bagala" has been derived from the Sanskrit word, Valga which means 'bride' in Sanskrit. Goddess Bagalamukhi has been given this name because of her beauty.

Goddess Bagalamukhi relieves a person from the enemies and negative energies. Goddess Bagalamukhi is also known as Bagalamukhi. Yellow colored materials are used for her puja as she is fond of yellow color. Goddess Bagalamukhi has a yellow complexion like a gold and thus a person should wear yellow colored clothes while worshipping her.

She can be easily pleased by offering yellow flowers and coconut to her. Lamps should be lit in front of the idol of the Goddess kept on a heap of turmeric. Reciting Goddess Pitambar's Mantras and offering yellow clothes to the Goddess relieves a person from all kinds of obstacles and sufferings.

Recitation of Bagalamukhi Mantra is believed to have miraculous powers. Bagalamukhi Mantra is known to ensure victory over enemies. Bagalamukhi is also called Bagalamukhi or Brahmastra Roopini and she turns each thing into its opposite. She turns speech into silence, knowledge into ignorance, power into impotence, and defeat into victory. She represents the knowledge whereby each thing must in time become its opposite. As the still point between dualities she allows us to master them. To see the failure hidden in success, the death hidden in life, or the joy hidden in sorrow are ways of contacting her reality. Bagalamukhi is the secret presence of the opposite wherein each thing is dissolved back into the Unborn and the Uncreated.
